3. Ed also advised me of your concern and interest in controlling the software development process. I fully support Ed's assertion that responsibility for development of complex administrative systems which interconnect must necessarily remain with ODP. I am confident, however, that your active participation throughout the development process, together with the traditional customer approval in the requirements and acceptance stages, will ensure development of a system which meets the needs of OIS.

4. I have asked [] to set up a meeting shortly after [] convene to review their plans and show our support for that undertaking.
